Request for Cancer Information & Support Services

The Canadian Cancer Society offers a range of services that provide informational, emotional and practical support. Patients and caregivers are more likely to access and benefit from these services when they hear about them from people they trust, such as their healthcare providers.

Healthcare providers can help by submitting this form.

A message to patients and caregivers:

"The Canadian Cancer Society has programs and services, most of which are free, for people who have cancer and their caregivers. If you'd like, I can send a request for you and someone from the Society will call you to see if any of these services would be useful to you. Would you like me to send in a request for you?"
